

Liquid Migration in European Societies

Public lecture by Godfried Engbersen

Thursday 28 January 2010, 4-5pm

PROMOTIEZAAL D0.02, VUB ETTERBEEK CAMPUS

ALL WELCOME

On Thursday January 28, Prof. Dr Godfried Engbersen will give a public lecture entitled "Liquid Migration in European Societies". Engbersen (1958) is Professor of Sociology at the Erasmus University of Rotterdam. He has worked at the Universities of Leiden, Amsterdam, Utrecht and of California, Berkeley. He has written extensively on various issues relating to migration and integration and the city by applying a broad inter-disciplinary perspective. His expertise stretches into aspects of social inequality, urban marginality, migration and integration policies, and the positions of ethnic minorities and illegal immigrants. He is the author of numerous books, including Spheres of Integration: Towards a Differentiated Ethnic Minorities Policy (with R. Gabriels). Recent publications include two books on the illegal migration question: De ongekende stad: Inbedding en uitsluiting van illegale vreemdelingen (The Unknown City: Embeddedness and Exclusion of Illegal Immigrants, Amsterdam: Boom 1999). In 2010 a new book on EU enlargement and labour migration from Central and Eastern Europe, edited by Godfried Engbersen and others, will appear with AUP.

The lecture is hosted by the VUB Doctoral School in the Humanities and is organized by the interdisciplinary "Cities & Migration" group of the UAB Urban Studies Network.

PRACTICAL

Vrije Universiteit Brussel
Campus Etterbeek
Pleinlaan 2, 1050 Brussel, Belgium
Promotiezaal D0.02

www.vub.ac.be/phd/doctorschools/dsh/

www.universitaireassociatiebrussel.eu/citiesandmigration/

